Introduction

Cubro offers Warranty and Support Agreement to cover the Cubro products purchased by the customer. This enables us to offer customers the trust and confidence they need for their systems. We recommend the customers to include these services in every purchase order of Cubro products.

Only those Cubro products listed on the invoice that you received from Cubro or our authorized reseller are covered under this Warranty and Support Conditions. The Warranty and Support are separate agreements. A Warranty Agreement is included in the purchase of the product without any extra charges. However, Warranty Agreement only covers support on (hardware) product conformance to specifications whereas a Support Agreement provides expertise, remote technical support and personal touch such as help in a software update to the customer. For instance, if a unit has any problem, the customer with only warranty will be required to ship the units for an investigation to Vienna. In such a case, the customer might end up paying more if the reason for the damage was the wrong software configuration or misuse. Cubro encourages the customer to invest in Support Agreement besides Warranty to get quick access to Cubro Technical Support.

Cubro is certified with ISO 9001 for quality management according to international standards and with ISO 14001 for managing the efforts to protect our environment.

Warranty Agreement

Cubro's Warranty Agreement includes:

- ✓ Hardware warranty for TAPs, Network Packet Brokers, and other devices: 2 years (from the date of purchase stated on the customer's invoice)
- ✓ Hardware warranty for accessories: 1 year (from the date of purchase stated on the customer's invoice)
- ✓ Cubro warrants that the hardware products covered by these Warranty Conditions will function properly when used in accordance with normal and customary use of the products as intended by Cubro and in compliance with all instructions provided by us, subject to all of the terms and conditions of the Warranty Agreement.

Warranty Agreement Conditions

If the product is not performing as originally intended for use, the customer should contact Cubro Technical Support team via Cubro Support Portal

<https://support.cubro.com/support/login>. If a Cubro Support Engineer confirms the error reported by the customer, then the customer is kindly asked to ship the product back to Cubro. In case, the returned units are covered by our Warranty conditions; then it will be repaired or exchanged by our discretion.

The customer is responsible for shipment to Cubro, while Cubro covers the shipment back to the customer site provided that the country of the destination is the same where the product was originally shipped.

The Warranty Agreement covers replacement or repair (at Cubro's sole discretion) in the case if a defect in material, workmanship or software arises under conditions of normal and proper use in accordance with our operating instructions (see Operation Manual). Any attempt of unauthorized repair or disassembling of products results in immediate cancellation of the Warranty for that product.

Dead on Arrival (DOA) Policy

If the customer claims that the unit was DOA, they need to contact the Cubro Technical team under <https://support.cubro.com/support/login>. Cubro will accept DOA product from customer subject to the fulfilment of these conditions:

- ✓ Cubro Support team verifies the claim of the customer that the unit was DOA. This can happen either via remote access or according to other instructions by our support team.
- ✓ If the unit was purchased within 30 days, prior to the notification of the DOA product to Cubro.

If the above conditions are fulfilled, Cubro will ship a replacement unit to same shipment destination within 2 business days and the terms will remain the same as for the original shipment.

The customer must return the DOA unit in its original packaging and with all the accessories (also in original packaging). The unit has to be shipped back to Cubro within 30 days as per the shipment instructions provided by Cubro. Customer will pack the unit and help with the shipment and custom clearance procedure. Return shipments are only possible from original destination address where Cubro has shipped the units.

Warranty Agreement Limitations

In addition to all other conditions, within the Warranty Agreement, the Cubro Warranty Agreement does not cover any product that has been damaged or rendered defective as a result of:

1. Use of the product other than for its usual and customary use
2. The failure of the customer to use the product in accordance with the component user manual(s)
3. Any modification or repair of the product by the customer or any other party other than Cubro
4. Any damage due to installation of third-party products
5. Any combination of the above

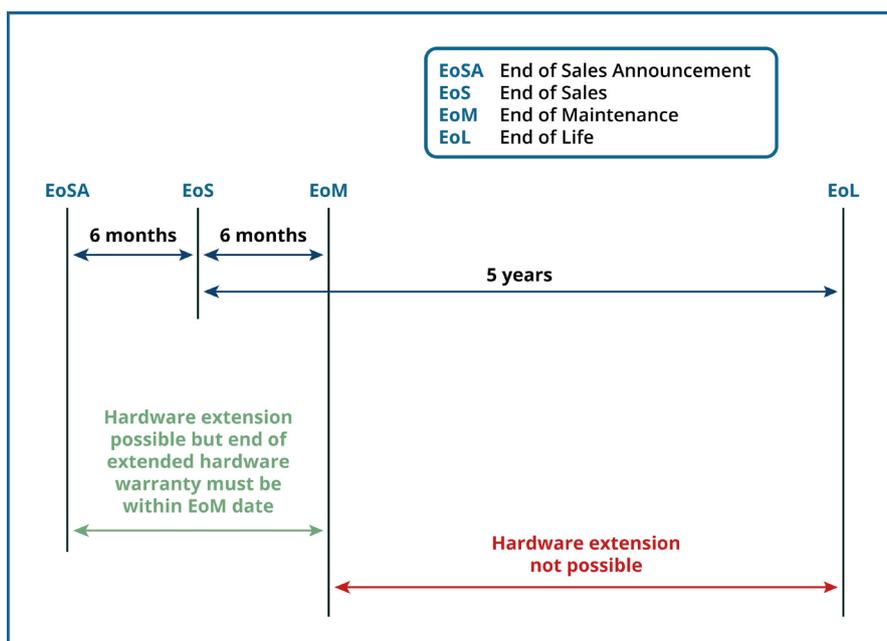

If Cubro reasonably determines after receipt of the unit, that the customer reported error is not covered by the Warranty Conditions (e.g. if units are physically damaged due to customer mishandling) the repair or exchange costs will be billed to the customer. The customer will be informed about the costs before the repair is performed. Whether the customer decides to get it repaired or not, the return shipment will be charged to the customer in this specific case.

Warranty Agreement Renewal

The Warranty Agreement for Cubro TAPs, Network Packet Brokers, and other devices (excluding accessories) is for two (2) years and can be extended up to a total of five (5) years from the purchase date. To extend the warranty, a separate agreement must be in place while the original warranty is still active.

The maximum warranty extension is until the End of Maintenance (EoM) date. The EoM date is six (6) months after the End of Sales (EoS) date. Information about the EoS and EoM dates for each product can be found under Cubro End of Life Policy.

If a support team engineer confirms that a customer reported an error in software, Cubro will provide the customer a workaround or instructions for downloading a software correction.
- In order for the Software problem to be quickly analyzed, the Cubro technical support must have reasonable remote access to the Cubro equipment, which is claimed faulty.

Any remote access will be done with the customer permission, and Cubro staff will access only those areas authorized by the customer. Remote access will be terminated once the issue is resolved or at the end of the remote connection window.
